

Chairman's Report (March 18, 2015)

At my LUC review discussion with Steve Adams for this meeting, Steve and I discussed goals for our meetings as follows

- Efficient,
- Streamline,
- Interactive,
- Short,
- Direct,
- Energized,
- Engaging

I want to discuss several of these goals today.

I've received feedback regarding the two goals of being "interactive with others, and keeping our meetings direct and short".

- Directness and brevity (short) -- We occasionally have a tendency to wander off topic and discuss items which are obviously important, but perhaps not directly relevant to our commission topics. We all have a great interest in our community and happenings within, but keeping our meetings direct and short is an important aspect of our meetings. I'd like your input on this goal about how we can keep our commission discussions on topic and keep them relevant and short.
- Interactive -- Many of us have been on the commission, including water board, etc. for a number of years. We've learned a lot during that time period and certainly appreciate all the training and related experiences we've had. We have newer members on the commission and certainly appreciate their desire to serve with us. Our newer members bring a wealth of community and professional experiences. I would appreciate our recognition of their service and professional knowledge and skills. Please remember that they are learning, don't have all the service time of others, and have numerous experiences relevant to the commission. Thank our newer members during our meetings for their interest and questions regarding our work.
- Please comment on the mentioned goals and let us know if other goals should be considered.

Thank you,

Eugene Packer
